

A Note About COVID-19

The evolving news around the coronavirus here and abroad is impacting the way all of us move through our days, both personally and professionally. At Coulter Farmstead, we are following the best practices provided by health organizations, and we are monitoring any changes in recommendations as the days unfold.

We want you to know that your health and well-being, as well as the health and well-being of everyone here at Coulter Farmstead, is of the utmost importance to us and is guiding our decisions during this unprecedented time.

Right now, it is business as usual for us, and we are following the guidelines put forward. Every space is cleaned thoroughly (as always) between visits. We are sanitizing all surfaces with hydrogen peroxide added cleaner, washing all linens and towels in hot water with added sanitizer and providing hand sanitizer in each space. The cabins, as well as the barn loft, are private and separate so there is no reason for interaction with others. With breakfast delivery to you, there is no common spaces shared with other guests and with the historical nature of our farmstead, most surfaces are wood, which limits or stops the transmission and viability of the virus. Coulter Farmstead is the perfect spot to get away from the masses and enjoy a peaceful setting without feeling like you are confined to your house.

We have full kitchens in each unit so you will never have to leave. Just bring your food and relax knowing you are having a safe and pleasant vacation. If you need assistance purchasing food for your stay, give me a call or send me an email. I would be happy to take care of that for you. Coulter Farmstead continues to offer the ideal place to hide away from the world, slow down and enjoy all of life's details and splendor, even during these most trying times.

Thank you, Brad
